GCFLearnFree.org Launches New Re-Design of Blog

(Raleigh, NC) – GCFLearnFree.org recently unveiled a completely new design of the GCFLearnFree.org blog. This new format better organizes the content on the blog, categorizing articles by topic so that visitors can better find the information they are seeking. Topics of focus are: Apps, Career, Computers, Email Basics, Internet Basics, Math, Microsoft Office, New Technology, Reading, and Social Media.

GCFLearnFree.org strives to provide educational content for the most popular technology subjects but, when resources are not available to create a tutorial for the website, the blog allows staff to still provide relevant, helpful information to learners that are interested in topics not currently available at GCFLearnFree.org. Most recently, blog posts about Quickbooks, Photoshop, and Coding have been popular articles and were written in response to requests from learners who were interested in exploring these topics further.
